

What You Need to Know About Paying for Your Healthcare

Key terms

Your copay is the fixed amount you pay for a covered healthcare service. This is usually paid at the time you receive the service. The dollar amount can vary by the type of service (doctor office visit vs. ER visit).

Your out-of-pocket maximum is the most you will pay for covered healthcare services in a given plan year.

Your deductible is the amount you pay for covered healthcare services before your health plan starts to chip in. Note: Preventive care services such as wellness exams and preventive screenings are generally not subject to the deductible.

Your coinsurance is the percentage you pay for covered healthcare services after your deductible has been met.

Example - Member Healthcare Journey Meet Joe

Joe makes an appointment with his doctor for his annual wellness exam. Preventive services are covered at 100% (in-network) and the deductible is waived. That means Joe does not have to pay anything.

A few months later, Joe needs an X-ray. He has not yet met his deductible for the plan year, so he must pay the full amount.

It is flu season and Joe does not feel well. He makes an appointment with his doctor. When he checks into the office, he pays a co-pay.

Later in the year, Joe bursts his appendix and needs emergency surgery. He has already met his deductible, so he only has to pay his share of the co-insurance until he reaches the out-of-pocket maximum. From that point on, his health plan will pay the rest.

If Joe gets sick again before the end of the plan year, his health plan will pay 100% of the covered services.
